Thinking Out Loud

H. M. L.

The address of President Roosevelt in Chicago is probably the most candid statement of any kind made by him since his first inaugural. It is a clear call to arms to defend the world peace and international contracts. It is the good neighbor policy continued to its logical conclusion. As a nation we propose to live on terms of friendship with the rest of the world. But if Japan, Italy and Germany refuse to abide by international law, then we must join with those who demand peace and good neighborly relations, in defending the peace.

While the matter is much more complicated than in the case of individual communities and private citizens, the principles that govern international relations are exactly the same as those that govern communities and the private lives of individuals. Ordinarily we have peace but we pay for it. We hire policemen and peace officers to arrest and sequester those who commit crimes or disturb the peace. Eventually to avoid world chaos and anarchy, we shall join with other nations to enforce peace and to enforce adjudication of controversies between nations in international courts. This is what President Wilson proposed and force of events, and logic of world conditions, is compelling this nation, reluctant though it is to give over the illusion of "safety in isolation," to adopt that policy in world affairs.

No one who observes the slavery that is imposed on the working classes of the three countries mentioned, doubts for a moment that the dictators are riding to a fall. But it requires time for an oppressed people to gather the strength for rebellion. And in the meantime it is the natural and inevitable policy of dictators to create world disturbances outside their borders to keep the minds of their harrassed subjects off the ills their despotism has imposed. Japan's militarists faced with what amounted to rebellion at home, when their party was overwhelmingly defeated in the elections a few months ago, immediately launched a huge invasion in China. The pretext was silly, but the reasons were compelling. To maintain dominance of the tax ridden Japanese, the military satraps must give them something to do outside Japanese borders. History records nothing more cruel, more criminal on a national scale than the mass murder of Chinese.

If the President follows up his declaration with prompt, efficient action there will be no world war. The threat will vanish with the first show of naval force. None of the three bellicose nations is wealthy enough to carry on war against the rest of the world determined to enforce peace. An agreement among France, Great Britain and United States upon a coalition of forces to maintain peace would in itself be enough to send the dogs of war back into their kennels. But beyond that are re-inforcements of tremendous importance. The Scandinavian nations, South American, the British dominions, Netherlands and Belgium would acquiesce immediately. In fact the League of Nations would be in accord with the Big Three decision.

It is high time these international bullies were curbed. The money they have expended on armament would have made them as prosperous as any other nation on earth if it had been expended in the peaceful channels of trade and in maintaining good faith with their neighbors. The dictators by very force of circumstances can never obtain a fair or honest perspective of world affairs. Their ego magnified by synchophants, they become, as Nero became, mad with power. Their delusions of grandeur involve them and their peoples. Unless they are able to see that a greater power, a united world opinion, backed by united navies, will surely crush them in event of war, they will continue on their mad course.

The Epworth League of Nevada City will hold their annual freshmen reception on Friday at 7 o'clock at the gymnasium of the Methodist church. This is for the purpose of welcoming new members to the league. Jean Martz is the chairman of decoration committee and Alice Graham heads the refreshments committee. New students are invited and will enjoy themselves.

Driver To Be Tried For Negligent Homicide

The trial of Raymond Smith, chauffeur charged with negligent homicide, will begin next Wednesday morning in the Superior Court, Judge Raglan Tuttle presiding.

Smith, chaffeur for William Williams, well known oil and mining man of southern California, was driving his employer in a big Pierce Arrow car on the morning of the Fourth of July. He was coming west from Reno enroute to Sacramento. It is alleged by witnesses that he was driving at a high rate of speed and on the wrong side of the road and ran head-on into a Chevrolet coupe in which were Asa Eddings, his wife and two little daughters of Sacramento, out for a holiday at the lake. The impact, resulted in the death of Eddings, his wife and one of the daughters. The coupe was practically telescoped so that it required more than half an hour to get the doors open and remove the bodies of the tragedy victims.

Mrs. Eddings apparently died instantly, but her husband was brought to the Nevada county hospital where he was treated by Dr. A. H. Tickell, but died about two and a half hours after reaching Nevada City. The little girl was taken to Colfax where she, too passed away only an hour or so after reaching medical care.

ROTARY HEARS SEN. SEAWELL ON LABOR, MINING

State Senator Jerrold Seawell was the speaker at yesterday's meeting of the Rotary club. Adverting to his former address before the club last year he stated that he had then made a number of prophecies regarding what the legislature would do in the session of 1937. He then declared that the severance tax upon gold would be defeated, and it was; that no additional taxes would be levied, and there were none; and that the state budget would probably be balanced in 1939, and there is now assurance that, not only will it be balanced, but also that the state treasury may show anywhere from $10,000,000 to $30,000,000 surplus.

He made another prophecy, that is, that there will be a reduction of taxes at the next session of the legislature in 1939.

Regarding the mining industry, Senator Seawell declared that while today it is undoubtely in a more healthy condition than in the last 3 years, danger of legislation which will curtail and restrict it lies in the very face that while at its peak there is tendency among mining men to become lax in defense of the industry. At the state mining congress which met recently in Yreka, it developed that bills are pending or in the making to restrict hydraulic and dredge mining, that the mining debris situation is being exploited again by selfish interests, and a few mining operators are aggravating a condition that should yield to enlightened adjustment, rather than trample on the rights of others. He declared the mining industry must respect the rights of others if it is to receive consideration at the hands of others.

Senator Seawell called attention to the fact that for the first time in mining history, the industry is to be adequately advertised. A building devoted to mining and costing $110,000 is being erected on Treasure Island upon which the Golden Gate World Exposition will stand. Inside the building there will rise a mountain and by means of escalators vast numbers of spectators will be carried through tunnels, drifts and upaises so that they may see lode mining operations at first hand. There will be hydraulic and placer mining operations for the education of the public and dredge mining will also be shown. He suggested that the Rotary give this project every support since the mining counties will be called upon to contribute money for the construction of this great exposition of the Golden State's fundamental industry.

Touching briefly on the labor war now being conducted between two great factions, the senator said that in his opinion there was a solution to be found in the Railroad Labor Act. He stated that he regarded the Wagner act as unworkable, and believed that it should be so amended as to coincide in its main provisions with the Railroad Labor Act. In the last session of the legislature he introduced an act copying the Federal Railroad Labor Act and it passed the Senate but failed in the assembly. Assemblymen from Southern California beat it.

The speaker called attention to the present drive to reduce the state legislature to a unicameral body. This he declared would menace the rural districts of California and throw control of the state into the hands of representatives of Los Angeles, Alameda and San Francisco counties. As the legislature is now constituted rural counties control the senate, while urban counties control the assembly. Any change in this plan, he contended, would work to the detriment of agricultural and mining districts.

MRS. LOUISE BUFFINGTON BURIED

Funeral services were held in Oakland on Monday for the late Mrs. Louise Buffington widow of the late W. H. Buffington. Mrs. Buffington often visited relatives in this city years ago and will be remembered by old time residents.

COUNCIL HEARS COMPLAINTS

The city council last evening considered several complaints regarding the condition of streets A committee of the Odd Fellows, consisting of Ludwig Netz and Stephen Roberts brought to the attention of the board the fact that for a considerable interval this summer the Odd Fellows cemetery has been without water. According to Herbert Hallett the pipes were blocked at one time by tar which peels from the inside of new pipes and accumulates at the first outlet. The council was asked to reduce the seasonal charge for the Odd Fellows cemetery from $16 to $10, at which price the committee stated it could buy the water from the N. I. D. The council however, refused to do so because the other cemetery organizations had already paid the $16 charge.

Mrs. Tremaine of Tribulation Trail asked the council to improve Jordan street so that it would be less dangerous to traffic. She stated that a tremendous amount of water flows off the street into their and their neighbors premises and asked that the street itself be graded, widened and drained. The council agreed to put drains in to head off the water from the property below but did not believe it would be possible to do much street work this year.

A resident of Sacramento street asked that another light be installed on the east side of the street between Zion and Pine. She stated that several women were afraid to go out in the evening owing to the dark interval that they must traverse before coming to a lighted street.

Mrs. Trevethick asked if the board would not do something to improve the street that leads to her house in the vicinity of Netz quarry. Rocks were dumped into it last year but these have already disappeared in the red clay, she stated. Her tenants were obliged to leave their cars uptown during last winter. The board did not seem disposed to do much work on this street this year, but Frank Davies, chairman of the street committee, said he would survey it again and see if it could be improved temporarily.

The following bills were ordered paid:

Native Daughters To Aid in Park Planting

At the regular meeting of Laurel Chapter, Native Daughters of the Golden West held Wednesday evening the chapter decided to undertake a project of great interest and benefit to Nevada City.

At this meeting the question of beautifying Pioneer Park was brought up. After discussion the ladies decided to take the lead in planting and caring for trees at the park, especially around the swimming pool and Seaman's Hall. This is a project of real civic interest, and improvement of this park will be a great memorial to the pioneers of this city. The Native Daughters plan to enlist the cooperation of other organizations in the city and all will work together towards the beautification of the park.

On Arbor Day in March, 1938, they will do some tree planting with appropriate memorial services.

One of the present difficulties in inaugurating a planting program is the lack of water to keep the plants moist during the first summer after planting. The park commission has frequently asked the city council, either to lay water pipes so that this can be done, or to grant such funds for the purpose as may be necessary. It is hoped now that the Native Daughters have generously undertaken to aid in this task that the city council will lay the necessary pipes so that when shrubs and trees are planted they will grow.

The success that attended the parking of the Native Daughters' realty holding at Union and Broad streets, sold recently to the Forestry Service, which made that corner one of restful beauty, augurs well for their enterprise in Pioneers Park where nature itself gives every assistance in any landscaping endeavor. The public spirit and civic pride which has always animated Laurel Parlor is appreciated by all citizens who know their unselfish and devoted service to make Nevada City a better place to live.

TWO INJURED IN BRIDGE COLLAPSE

The bridge across the North Fork of the Yuba river at Slate Castle, a mile above Downieville collapsed Wednesday causing a very serious accident and almost costing the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Jones. Mr. and Mrs. Jones were in the cab of a Grant and Heether lumber truck. Mr. Jones driving attempted to cross the bridge which is about fifty feet long and about thirty feet above the water.

When the truck, loaded with lumber was at about the center of the bridge, the bridge collapsed and the truck crashed through being turned bottom side up as it reached the bed of the river. Mrs. Jones was able to crawl out of the cab through the broken window but Mr. Jones was pinned in the cab by piled up lumber. The cab immediately filled with water and Mr. Jones' head was almost covered when Con Yoerk of the Slate Castle auto camp who had witnessed the crash, arrived and reached into the cab and pulled Jones' head out of the water and held it. Another witness of the accident had summoned a tow outfit from Downieville Upon its arrival lumber was removed and the truck turned so that Jones could be removed after being in the cold water over an hour.

Dr. Carl Sutton of Downieville gave first aid treatment to the injured who were taken to Downieville until the arrival of the Holmes Funeral Home ambulance which brought them to the Nevada City Sanitarium, where Dr A. H. Tickell took care of them. Mrs. Jones was found to be suffering from a severe laceration of the knee, a broken shoulder blade and other lesser injuries and bruises. Mr. Jones, who suffered greatly from the severe shock was treated for head cuts.

There was some fear that pneumonia might set in after Mr. Jones' long exposure in the cold water but late yesterday Dr. Tickell stated that he believed the danger of pneumonia had passed. Both Mr. and Mrs. Jones made some improvement since being cared for at the Nevada City Sanitarium.

The collapsed bridge was privately owned by Yoerk's Slate Castle Auto Camp and Ballard White who lives near the camp. The lumber was consigned to White who is rebuilding his home which was destroyed by fire last year.

PERRI GRAVEL UNDER LEASE AND OPTION

B. J. Hickman of Santa Barbara has taken a lease and option on the Frank Perri and Hayley gravel properties nine miles east of Nevada City. The ground lies between the Tahoe Ukiah highway and Deer Creek a portion of it being the old Burlington Hill hydraulic property. Mr. Hickman was in Nevada City yesterday buying supplies for his camp and stated five men started work Wednesday morning making preparations for active development. The Burlington Hill ground has a rich past production record from hydraulic operations years ago. It is understood the property will be operated throughout the winter.

MRS. SEAMAN'S PASSING DEEPLY GRIEVES FRIENDS

With the passing of Mrs. Rosario Seaman, widow of the late A. Seaman, who preceded her by more than a year, Nevada City loses one of its gentlest and kindliest women. Funeral services were held for her last Monday at the Holmes Chapel and the many flowers there attested mutely the affection and respect in which she was held.

Her passing came suddenly. She was taken ill Wednesday and on Saturday the end came. The many friends she had made since coming to Nevada City as a little child were shocked and deeply grieved. All her life she and her late husband had been generous donors to those in want, giving unostentatiously whenever an appeal for a helping hand was made or whenever the need arose.

Coming to Nevada City with her parents the late Joseph and Henrietta Lawrence from Ontario, Canada, she met and wed A. Seaman nearly fifty years ago, and as bride and groom they went to the house on Clark street and lived in that large and hospitable home the rest of their lives. They joined the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, and were devoted and loyal members for more than two score years.

It is generally considered that the late Mayor A. Seaman, to whose energy and foresight, Nevada City owes in large measure Pioneers park, the municipal swimming pool and the lodge in the park which was named in his honor, shortened his life by his efforts to complete the work and at the same time to care for his own business. In this work Mrs. Seaman was deeply interested for both she and her husband were civic minded and took real joy in the upbuilding of Nevada City.

Surviving Mrs. Seaman are two sisters Mrs. John Milkie of Sacramento, and Mrs. Dorcas McCullough of Berkeley, and a son Irvine Seaman who continues his father's business.

Friends were deeply touched by the splendid tribute paid Mrs. Seaman's memory in the eulogy given in her memory by the Rev. H. H. Bulkner of the Methodist church.

LUCKY LADY

Tuesday night the night operator of the phone office hurried about Nevada City making purchases at several stores, the Purity Store being the last. As she hurried with her bundles she left her purse containing a $10 bill, small change, house key and letters. Phoning several places from home as it was late she was unable to locate the purse. Bright and early the next morning her mother answered the knock at the door to find the Purity manager at the door with a wrapped package, the purse and contents undisturbed.

Work started Monday cleaning slimes from the Kohler ditch which carries water to Washington for power to generate lights for the little city Some work is being done on the storage dam also.

Sit-Down Sportsmen

Are we becoming a nation of sit-down sportsmen? That's an alarming prospect for a country priding itself on its sports and sportsmanship, but John R. Tunis, noted sportswriter, and no highbrow critic, asserts that we're all rapidly becoming—sad thought it may be!—reclining sportsmen.

We would all much rather sit down and watch a football, tennis, baseball, or basketball match, says this alarmed commentator, than exercise sufficient zeal to play ourselves. Too often we sit down and turn on the radio to listen to entertainment rather than engage in some activity of our own. We prefer to pack the family into the car and go driving, rather than get recreation by actively doing something ourselves.

Perhaps too many pre-digested past-times are soiling us. Instead of getting on the tennis courts, or golf links, or getting actively acquainted with California's wooded wonderlands with their winding mountain trails and cascading streams, we tend instead to recline and take our recreation the easiest way. We're a nation of too many onlookers, too few players, says this author.

If that's America this commentator is pointing his finger at, perhaps this country should bestir itself. A nation of sit-down sports-lovers would be an unthinkable calamity.—Contributed.

Among the late developments in the lumber manufacturing industry is a new water tight plywood which can be obtained in thicknesses from one-quarter to three-quarters inch thick. Very useful where damp conditions prevail as the glue used is of the same composition as bakelite and cannot disintegrate from moisture.

Stockholders of the Nevada County Bank, representing about 90 per cent of the total outstanding stock, held a special meeting last week to consider proposal for the sale of their stock to the Bancitaly Corporation. After explanation and discussion the sale was unanimously ratified. In the absence of president George L. Jones of the Nevada County Bank, Vice President A. H. Mooser authorized the statement that the bank will be operated for the present as an independent unit and that there will be no change whatsoever in the official staff or other personnel of the bank or in its policies. Plans for ultimate merger with a powerful nation wide banking chain, of the Bancitaly group is said to be in the process of making.

The Nevada County bank was organized about 1900 by E. J. Rector, B S.. Rector and W. H. Martin and a number of San Francisco bankers. In 1920 it absorbed the Citizens Bank, a pioneer institution, dating back to the 70's. in the early part of 1925, G. J. and E. M. Rector, who had entered the bank at its organization and had been at its head since the death of the elder Rector Brothers several years ago announced their desire to retire from the active business and control of the bank. SEES PRESIDENT AND FAMILY

Mrs. Hazel Figurski and son who returned Saturday from visiting relatives in Nampa, Idaho, saw President F. D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt, their daughter, Mrs. Boettinger and family of Seattle and other members of the party. The party left the train at Boise, Idaho to view reclamation projects. They motored to Nassa, Oregon, and again boarded the train. While near Boise the president was taken to a ten acre field where 1,000 bushels of onions had been harvested and were piled in sacks. Nampa is about the size of Nevada City and throngs of people have flocked there from the dust bowl to start life anew.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder if I really saw
The doleful little elf,
Who sat on Mr. Webster's book
And wailed about himself;
He told me that his name was Smart,
And then I heard him say,
"I'm overworked and tired out—
I wish you'd go away."

I wonder if the experience was a mere hallucination. It seemed very real at the time.

There he sat upon my dictionary, a bedraggled little creature, looking sadly shop worn and uttering acrid invectives aimed directly at the English speaking public.

"What are you doing here?" I asked wonderingly.

"Trying to get back into this book," he snapped, "and rest up before you force me into a position which a score of other words could fill far more effectively; I'm overworked, I tell you!"

"You are not the only overworked word," I said consolingly. "There's definitely; that word is exceedingly busy at the present time. Why don't you get together and help each other out?"

"Definitely?" he sneered, "definitely and I can't help each other, we're not even in the same class; do you get the point?"

"Oh, definitely," I automatically replied, whereat he broke up into component parts — five little segments, each marked by a letter of the alphabet. I picked up the tiny bits and placed them very carefully under the lid of Noah Webster's masterpiece.

Poor little Smart—sometime when I find a task exactly suited to his limited abilities, I'll articulate him; meanwhile, in his relaxed and detached condition, I hope he's enjoying that greatly needed nap.

I wonder why many words are overworked, while others are misapplied. I never find the slightest trace of pork in my cans of alleged pork and beans. Why didn't the canny canners purchase the little pigs which the government plowed under?

I wonder how State Forester M. B. Pratt succeeded in gaining such splendid cooperation from the erratic Jupiter Pluvius, just at the psychological moment too; Congratulations Mr. Pratt, now, if old General Public will fall in line, the spectral demon of fire will cease to haunt us.

I wonder what Miss Secretary Perkins did with the speech which the A. F. of L. didn't care to hear. That document must have contained many a worthy word. Some of them were probably maladjusted, but Miss Perkins, herself, is such a glaring example of maladjustment, that this was of course expected. —A. MERRIAM CONNER.

JAPAN MAY NOT COLLAPSE UNTIL WAR IS ENDED

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—"Although Japanese banks are now literally loaded with government securties, large new issues can undoubtedly be absorbed if bankers are willing to take them over," declares Margaret S. Gordon in the Far Eastern Survey, published by the Institute of Pacific Relations.

Writing on "Japanese Banks and War Loans," Mrs. Gordon concludes that " a financial breakdown resulting from a collapse in the market for Japanese government securities is not likely to occur during the period of the war. The financial history of the World War demonstrates that tremendous obstacles can be temporarily overcome when an entire nation is aroused to a united effort. The major difficulties experienced in financing the war will be external rather than internal. Japan's real day of reckoning with her unbalanced budget will probably come after the war is over."

Nevertheless, according to the author, "it is difficult to see how Japan can avoid a considerably greater degree of price inflation than she has so far experienced. Even if the government adopts a strict regime of price regulation, the effects of inflation are bound to be felt indirectly. In many ways, the situation in Japan may shortly resemble that in Germany, where a program of large scale public deficit spending, combined with strict control of prices and exchange rates, has resulted in shortage of consumers' goods without any spectacular rise of prices."

Surveying the large government borrowings of recent years, the author finds that "to an even greater degree than in this country, the government has had to rely on the banks to purchase its bonds, for there is no large class of private investors in Japan. There is no evidence that the government and the Bank of Japan have exerted any pressure on individual banks. The banks bought government bonds primarily because of a lack of other profitable outlets of their resources."

Commenting on the fact that bank loans failed to rise despite an acceleration of business activity, the author points out that "with depressed conditions in agriculture, and no marked expansion of internal trade, the demand for increased bank credit would have to come from the export and munitions industries These industries, however, have ploughed back much of their profits and have thus been in a position to rely less on bank loans and the capital market in general."

"Toward the end of 1936, however," the author continues, "banks curtailed their purchases of government bonds and began to make loans and discounts on a larger scale. Whether or not they were suddenly beginning to distrust government bonds is difficult to say, but in any event the long-expected increase in the industrial and speculative demand for bank funds had taken place. The government did not remain passive in the face of this threat to the market for its securities," but took various measures to hold down money rates, and made plans for the issuance of "baby bonds" to attract the small investors.

"Since the outbreak of war in China, the attitude of bankers has undergone a change. Infected with a wave of intense patriotism, they have pledged whole hearted support to the government. The authorities have not relaxed their efforts, however. Among other things, they have decided to adopt a new scheme for marketing government securities, involving the underwriting of new issues by a syndicate of bankers, which will doubtless be in a position to adopt somewhat more aggessive selling methods than would be open to the central bank."

"The problem of marketing government securities would appear, therefore, to present no serious difficulties from the short-run point of view. Of greater potential danger for the immediate future is the exhange situation," Pointing out that war supplies and raw materials will have to be imported, while Japanese export industries are certain to suffer, the author states that "Japan can hope for little outside financial help. The countries which are in sympathy with her politically can ill afford to help her financially, while investors in the countries which are strong financially would be unlikely to support any attempt to raise funds for the Tokyo government. Japan is, therefore, thrown back upon her own resources."

DEATH SUMMONS ANTONE J. ZERGA

CAMPTONVILLE, Oct. 7. — Antone J. Zerga, pioneer resident of this section, passed away at a Grass Valley hospital Monday morning following an illness of several months. Although the end was not unexpected, death came as a shock to his family and many friends.

Deceased was born in Genoa, Italy on October 6, 1868, making him 67 years of age. He came to this country when quite young, became a citizen, and married Miss Rosa Massa, and the family spent the rest of their life in this section, living at Indian Hill Mine for several years where he was connected with the mining industry, later moving to Oak Valley where he made a fine ranch and spent his time farming until the last few years when ill health caused him to retire.

"Tony" as he was known to all his friends, was a man of congenial nature, a good mixer and a favorite of all who knew him. His home was always open to his friends and he displayed the old time spirit of hospitality which is disappearing as the old timers pass to the great beyond. He was prominent in affairs of interest to the community and was always ready to lend a helping hand for the benefit of those about him.

Besides his wife, Rosa Zerga, he is survived by a son, Reno Zerga, and three daughters, Mrs. Sam Oaks, Mrs. Clarence E. Turner, and Mrs. Elwood C. Schurr, a sister Mrs. Catherine Pendola, three grandchildren and a number of nieces and nephews. He was a member of Camptonville I. O. O. F. Lodge, which a few years ago consolidated with the Downieville Lodge.

CAMPTONVILLE

CAMPTONVILLE, Oct. 7. — Al Flagg a native of Indian Hill and a former resident, now of San Francisco spent several days this week visiting his old home here. He is a retired employee of the P. G. & E. at that place.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Crothers have gone to Los Angeles for some little time where Mr. Crothers will be treated to improve his health.

Fred Yore was in town Saturday enroute to his home at Oregon House with some cattle.

HARTUNG'S CELEBRATES 22ND ANNIVERSARY IN JEWELRY BUSINESS

H. W. Hartung and Son is celebrating the twenty second anniversary of its business. Harold Hartung who carries on the business under the firm name is steeped in the fine business traditions established by his father H. W. Hartung. Graduating from the Nevada City high school young Hartung entered his father's business and with thorough care learned its every detail. With the growth of Nevada county this jewelry firm has more than kept pace, assuming a place of leadership in many lines of fine merchandise and retaining for the community the trade that tended to drift away, with the advent of good roads and automobiles. Only up-to-date and urban methods of business could accomplish this; that, and a friendly understanding of the needs of all those who patronize Hartung's in Grass Valley.

CALIFORNIA PAY ROLLS LARGER

Continued improvement is the analysis of California business by the Research Committee of the California State Chamber of Commerce, despite noticeable national recession and slackening of general business activity.

Employment in the manufacturing industries for the month of August was approximately 322,000 as compared with July 297,000 and 317,000 for August of 1936. The weekly payroll for August was in the neighborhood of $8,200,000, for July it was $7,700,000 and for August of 1936 it was $7,050,000.

Building demand declined slightly for the month of August. Seasonal index of building in 51 California cities, prepared by the California State Chamber of Commerce shows that building was 56 per cent of what it was in 1926, which year is taken as a base. In July it was 62 per cent. It was, however six per cent greater than it was in August, 1936.

Retail sales show an advance of three per cent in August over July. San Francisco bay region figures show no change, but in Los Angeles there was a sharp rise of seven per cent.

CHINESE GIVEN EVEN CHANCE IN WINNING WAR

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 7.—At approximately three fourths of its potential military efficiency today, the Chinese army has an even chance of Dr. H. Arthur Steiner, assistant professor of political science on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California, to which he has just returned following a summer spent in Japan, China and Russia.

"Since the Murken incident of 1931, Chinese national unification has made tremendous strides," says Dr. Steiner. "The nature of the change was best illustrated in the popular reaction when Chiang Kai-shek was kidnapped last December. While self-seeking factions and political leaders still remain in the picture, the Chinese nation is today, more than ever before, facing the world as a substantial national unit. In bringing about this unity, anti-Japanese sentiment is the chief cohesive factor. In the fact of that steadily growing unity, Japan finds the greatest challenge to her continental policy. Prompt action was thought necessary in Toyko to restrain the development.

"The Chinese army of 1937 has an abundance of well-disciplined manpower, under single direction. Lacking a navy China's armaments have necessarily been restricted to defensive materials. There is a shortage of air equipment, as well as of supplies of heavy munitions and artillery, which are needed to insure a successful stand against Japan. However, at approximately three fourths of its potential efficiency, the Chinese army has an even chance of withstanding aggression, as the recent fighting demonstrates.

"The conviction among foreigners as among Chinese, is that Japan's Asiatic policy must, in the long run, meet defeat. What makes the present crisis notable is the willingness of the Chinese to take time by the forelock, an unexpected decision which caused dismay to the Japanese high command and resulting demoralization in her military operations."

Dr. Steiner, whose visit to the Orient was made in order to meet newspapermen, diplomats and foreign officials with a view toward observing conditions at first hand, included in his ports of call Tokyo, Shanghai, Nanking, Tien-Esin, Peiping, Mukden, Harbin, Moscow, Kiev, Kharkov and Lenningrad. Before returning to the United States he spent some time in London.

WILD LIFE IN DEATH VALLEY IS DESCRIBED

BERKELEY, Oct. 7.—Death Valley is not the stark and sterile expense that many people believe it to be, for it supports 26 distinct species of mammalian life ranging from harvest mice to coyotes. An interesting account of the mammalian life in the valley, together with some cogent suggestions for its preservation, has just been published by Professor Joseph Grinnell, curator of the Museum of Vertebrate Zoology University of California.

Strangely enough, even on this driest of dry deserts, few mammals seem to have any need for free water, according to Professor Grinnell. No evidence could be found that any rodent or lagomorph visits water even when accessible It is probable that bats and carnivores in the region require water, at least occasionally.

Due to the increasing influx of visitors into Death Valley and their possible effect on the wild life there, Dr. Grinnell has included in his publication some suggestion for the preservation of the mammalian life there, because it possesses points of interest not found elsewhere. He asks that water sources be developed for humans and for such native animals as require water. Water should flow under protecting vegetation for most of the birds in the valley are loath to bathe or drink in the open because of fear of foes from the sky or elsewhere.

Because of the fact that a long series of bird and mammal species is dependent upon the mesquite growth for their existence, Dr. Grinnell asks that the mesquite should be preserved and that other types of fuel be used instead. The Valley will not stand much hunting and trapping, if its wild life is to be preserved. Watering places should be provided for the picturesque mountain sheep so that tourists may see these wild desert bighorns.

ECONOMIST SAYS REVOLUTION WILL END FASCISM

BERKELEY, Oct. 7.—The Fascist program, when carried to its ultimate objectives, as in Germany and Italy today, makes future revolution and war completely inescapable.

This statement was made by Dr. Robert A. Brady, associate professor of Economics at the University of California, in a speech delivered in Wheeler Auditorium on the University campus.

In commenting on the philosophy of the Fascist form of government, Dr. Brady said that the principlts on which it rests are "throughout anti-democratic, anti-liberal, and anti-equalitarian." He pointed out that Fascism can no longer be localized in Italy, as the land of its origin, but must be interpreted as including a program structure and series of objectives more or less common to a number of countries which have "repudiated in whole or in part democratic liberal traditions."

Fascism, he said, attempts to crystalize lines of social cleavage so that there will always remain an hereditary ruling class, both economic and political, while the mass of the population will be forced to accept a permanent servile status. Advancement is difficult, if not impossible, for those in the lower rankings.

All the essential elements of capitalism are retained in the completely Fascist countries "minus the sanctions of laissez faire and plus the sanctions of monopoly." Labor is completely subjugated through elimination of all labor unions and the organization of nation wide "company unions" which give the employers complete power over wages, hours, and working conditions.

The Fascist state is organized on a military pattern with centralized control. Authority and control are directed from the top down. "The rule holds," said Dr. Brady, "that the lower one descends in the hierarchy the greater emphasis should be placed on propaganda to deflect iterest away from such matters as wages, hours, standards of living ,food, clothing and shelter. Combined in control at the top are the agricultural artistocrats, the leading figures in the industrial, financial and commercial world and the demagogures."

P. G. E. PUTS UP NEW POLE LINE

A crew of P. G. & E. linemenn are digging holes on Boulder street to set new 45 foot poles replacing the present line. As soon as the poles are set and guy wires in place the wires will be moved to the poles on the south side of the street. They will be several feet higher than the old ones.

The WPA paving project on Park avenue is progressing rapidly both sides of the street being completed as far as Nimrod street. Work is now going on for a distance of several hundred feet from the Elkus property south, forms being laid and sidewalks shaped up for cement. A large boulder in front of the Mainhart property has been dug around and blasted to shatter it so as to bring the sidewalk to the same grade. In a few days this work will be completed and cement poured to complete both sides of Boulder street sidewalks from the Plaza to the Preston home at the eastern city limits.
